“ Van always had an anecdotal conversation with me. Nearly 9 years my senior, as a kid brother I gleaned much from Van. Introduction to Jazz, specifically John Coltrane and Miles Davis, is one of earliest memories. Playing chess games on the front porch with his friends/neighbors. I remember seeing a weird stick with a net on it, only to realize after Van went away to University, that he was an accomplished Lacrosse athlete. And, once I earned a driver's license, I was fortunate enough to visit my big brother in Hoboken at Steven's Institute of Technology. I remember he and the other students being so so high brow. Van and one of his friends and neighbor were the first young men that I remember who went off to Vietnam. The neighbor returned some months later minus one leg. Van however, was an officer in the United States Airforce. I always looked up to him. Van's knowledge, wisdom will always be a beacon of light to me. Semper Fidelis.

“ Two of the best things about my Uncle is his love of movies. The first time I saw Superman was on the new HBO. Then there was Silverado. Good memories. The second was watching him cook. He was an artist of food whether it was inside or out on the grill.

We saw him as an unconquered spirit determined to rebound from any adversity, like an early retirement to land the job of his life in New York City, N.Y.. What a champion, What a symbol, What an inspiration.

Van, nobody can take your place in our hearts or in our memories.

Love you, God Bless, Rest in Peace

Van was the kind of man other men wished they had been and young boys hope they will be.

His spirit lives on in the memories of the people he has touched.
